"Breaking Through The Shadows" seeks to convey the story of the shattering series of transitions in my life. Through it, I hope to help you understand what it means to be living in a camouflaged image of negative shadows - an image based on fears, hurts, rejection, anger, disappointments, regrets, and frustrations - and how to break through these shadows. When we break through the shadows of our unfulfilled hopes, dreams, aspirations, and desires, we gain the faith, strength and courage to design our own image, and live outside our shadows.

Information technology is here to stay. Its impact has already been far-reaching: in business, in communications, and in leisure activities it has been responsible for replacing human action by that of machines. As such it raised questions about freedom and the meaning of work and human activity which could no longer be ignored by those working in education. The educational response to information technology must ensure that human activities are enhanced rather than enslaved by computers. Originally published in 1988 Breaking into the Curriculum provides one such response. A range of curricular structures and teacher roles are examined for their potential for preserving freedom in a future that was already being formed and informed by electronic systems. Drawing on case studies of pupils and teachers from throughout their school career, the authors of this collection sought to provoke discussion on the true ends of education and the kinds of strategies that would best realise those ends. Information technology, it is argued, is already shaping our thinking concerning the schooling of children. As such it can either create an electronically-controlled environment, or it can provide the stimulus for imaginative, playful, and creative thought and the development of 'intelligence' in its broadest sense. The choice is ours: the authors of this collection seek to inform that choice. Today it can be read in its historical context.

Sloane Hartley is one of those who was born knowing. Eighteen and too self-aware, she walks the fine line between analyzing her world and being a part of it. A breakdown at college and a love affair with a former teacher release the ire that simmers beneath her surface; she becomes depressed and eventually suicidal. Trying to maintain a normal facade, she becomes increasingly secretive and lost until she knows she must claw her way back out if she wants to live. Sloane's humor and cynicism throughout proves that the human spirit overcomes all, and that you really never know what is in the heart of another human being.

Keith Clouten has comprehensively researched the extent to which the Lord was involved in providing the inspired writings as we have them today. It is made clear that, though He oversaw the whole process, He didn't puppeteer it. Moses, John, and all the Bible writers in between were God's penmen, not pen. The principles of revelation and inspiration that shaped the biblical Canon carry over to the prophetic status and ministry of Ellen White. Clouten takes a balanced approach in emphasizing that her faulty humanity didn't differ from that of David, Jonah, and others, or affect the legitimacy of her messages or fulfillment of the prediction in Joel 2:28. Readers of this valuable book will be stirred with a fresh appreciation for God and His immeasurable desire to teach His wayward children how He plans to redeem them.

"Breaking the Chains" starts off where "If I fell" ended, and is an illustration at how friendships develop, devolve, and sometimes end. From diffidence to recklessness, follow John as he tries to navigate the choppy waters that is college life at Umass, Amherst. From trying to overcome his fears and phobias, to meeting the friend of a lifetime, this story encapsulates what life was like, coming of age, for an awkward, shy, introvert, in the nineteen eighties.

Walking Through the Valley with the Lord Psalm 23 The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his names sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me. Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever. Have a Great Journey
