Research before you job search It's no use trying to impress employers if you have very little sense of what will press their buttons. Do your homework thoroughly before making any kind of approach...

Congratulations! By opening this book, you have taken the very important first step toward finding a job and taking charge of your life. Our goal is to make the process of finding a job as simple and easy as possible. Whatever your age or educational background, you will find guidelines here to help you succeed. You will be able to use the information and tips in this book to help you to obtain positive results. This book will provide you with the knowledge and expert advice you need to:

- Complete a self-assessment worksheet
- Locate and explore employment opportunities
- Learn how to implement social networking in your job search
- Write professional, award-winning resumes which show your value
- Write cover letters that apply to specific positions
- Write an elevator speech and understand business etiquette
- Answer tough interview questions
- Complete pre-interview checklists
- Complete post-interview checklists
- Set goals and learn why time management will help achieve them
- Assess acceptable dress codes and professional attitudes

Looking for a new job (or trying to land your first one) can be a scary thing. As we write this book, unemployment is high and the job market is soft. This should not discourage you from putting your best foot forward. There are thousands of companies in the marketplace, and for every one which is not hiring, there are several which are. In today's ever-changing world of work, we must be creative in our search, open to thinking 'out of the box' and willing to listen to a new thought or idea. There is no reason for you to navigate your search alone. The guidelines in our book will assist you in communicating effectively and efficiently as your journey begins.

This new edition of the multinational bestseller shows you how to develop the skills and values that employers always seek, and where today's employment opportunities are.

"In this ... guide to the ever-changing modern workplace, Kathryn Minshew and Alexandra Cavoulacos, the co-founders of [the] career website TheMuse.com, show how to play the game by the New Rules, [explaining] how to figure out exactly what your values and your skills are and how they best play out in the marketplace ... [They] guide you as you sort through your countless options [and] communicate who you are and why you are valuable and stand out from the crowd"--

A job-search manual that gives career seekers a systematic, tech-savvy formula to efficiently and effectively target potential employers and secure the essential first interview. The 2-Hour Job Search shows job-seekers how to work smarter (and faster) to secure first interviews. Through a prescriptive approach, Dalton explains how to wade through the Internet's sea of information and create a job-search system that relies on mainstream technology such as Excel, Google, LinkedIn, and alumni databases to create a list of target employers, contact them, and then secure an interview—with only two hours of effort. Avoiding vague tips like "leverage your contacts," Dalton tells job-hunters exactly what to do and how to do it. This empowering book focuses on the critical middle phase of the job search and helps readers bring organization to what is all too often an ineffectual and frustrating process.

This book would be a good fit for the graduates as a needed gift, which gives them the direction in their first career job searches. This book covered clear information about key aspects of a job search. Resume, interview, and networking guidelines were presented in a straightforward, but very engaging, style. It was clear the authors have real-world experience and know-how to pass it on. Whether you are searching for your first job or already working, Grad to Great will help you gain career momentum FAST! Grad to Great is a no-nonsense, no fluff guide to career success for recent graduates. The author's tell-it-like-it-is approach to surviving and thriving in the real world makes this an indispensable handbook for anyone embarking on their first career. Readers benefit from real on-the-job scenarios, interviews with executives, and insightful tactics that can be put into practice immediately.

The definitive career guide for grad students, adjuncts, post-docs and anyone else eager to get tenure or turn their Ph.D. into their ideal job Each year tens of thousands of students will, after years of hard work and enormous amounts of money, earn their Ph.D. And each year only a small percentage of them will land a job that justifies and rewards their investment. For every comfortably tenured professor or well-paid former academic, there are countless underpaid and overworked adjuncts, and many more who simply give up in frustration. Those who do make it share an important asset that separates them from the pack: they have a plan. They understand exactly what they need to do to set themselves up for success. They know what really moves the needle in academic job searches, how to avoid the all-too-common mistakes that sink so many of their peers, and how to decide when to point their Ph.D. toward other, non-academic options. Karen Kelsky has made it her mission to help readers join the select few who get the most out of their Ph.D. As a former tenured professor and department head who oversaw numerous academic job searches, she knows from experience exactly what gets an academic applicant a job. And as the creator of the popular and widely respected advice site The Professor is In, she has helped countless Ph.D.'s turn themselves into stronger applicants and land their dream careers. Now, for the first time ever, Karen has poured all her best advice into a single handy guide that addresses the most important issues facing any Ph.D., including: -When, where, and what to publish -Writing a foolproof grant application -Cultivating references and crafting the perfect CV -Acing the job talk and campus interview -Avoiding the adjunct trap -Making the leap to nonacademic work, when the time is right The Professor Is In addresses all of these issues, and many more.

This guidebook is accompanied by a videocassette, on job search strategies for students with disabilities (the videotape should be accompanied by each school's own training materials based on personal needs). The guide begins with information on Title I of the Americans with Disabilities Act. It discusses the Title's purpose, main provisions, and important definitions. The type of employment protections provided in the job application process, during the job interview, in the employment decision, and while on the job are outlined. Students are encouraged to approach their work search and career decision making with careful consideration and enthusiasm. A self-assessment process is presented for examining likes and dislikes in various life activities, leading to a list of skills and interest areas for career development. Tools to help students sort through their skills, abilities, interests, and values in order to make informed career decisions are noted, along with descriptions of publications such as the "Dictionary of Occupational Titles." Networking and informational interviews are presented as methods of gaining information and contacts in certain types of work and learning of open positions. Suggestions for writing resumes and cover letters are offered. Procedures for determining when job seekers should disclose their disability are presented. Guidelines for performing well in job interviews are also discussed. The final section lists national and local (Spokane, Washington) organizational resources, employment hot lines, and a 14-item bibliography. The 10-minute videocassette emphasizes the importance of self-confidence in job interviews, preparing for the job interview, disclosing one's disability, and outlining accommodations needed. (JDD)
